Derived categories and homological invariants

Bernhard Keller
University of Paris VII

It is a fundamental fact that two algebras with equivalent derived categories share a great number of homological invariants, notably Hochschild homology, Hochschild cohomology and cyclic homology. In these lectures, we will define these invariants and show their preservation under derived equivalence. Our main tool will be differential graded algebras and their derived categories.